

A product can belong to one or no catagories. Example: A computer can be in the computer cathegory or not be cathegorized. We want to keep track of the different cathegories the store had during its lifetime that's why we store them in an entity set.